YOUTH EMPOWERMENT CONFERENCE

BACKGROUND

The world is facing increasingly complex and interconnected global challenges. Climate change, social inequality, and economic instability are no longer issues that can be overlooked. Achieving sustainable development at its core, a collective effort to protect our planet cannot rely solely on technology, government policies, or national commitments. The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) represent a shared global commitment, but without individuals who take meaningful action, they remain merely a set of aspirations on paper.

Those individuals are human capital. Without people who are competent, resilient, globally minded, and committed to sustainability, the vision of sustainable development will be difficult to achieve. Unfortunately, there remains a significant gap between the immense potential of today's youth and their readiness to address the challenges of the future (World Economic Forum, 2025–2026).

Driven by this concern, the Youth Empowerment Conference was established with a mission to strengthen human capital as the foundation of sustainable development. YEC believes that meaningful and lasting change begins with leaders who possess strong character, understand global challenges, and are prepared to take action. By fostering balanced spiritual, emotional, and intellectual intelligence, YEC empowers young people to become purpose driven leaders capable of creating positive impacts across society, the economy, culture, the environment, and their own communities.

Following two consecutive successful programs in Malaysia, YEC now expands to Japan as part of its long term commitment to cultivating a global ecosystem of youth development one that nurtures the next generation of leaders who are ready to contribute to a more sustainable and inclusive future.

WHAT IS YOUTH EMPOWERMENT CONFERENCE?

Youth Empowerment Conference is an international scale youth empowerment institution dedicated to developing character driven leaders with a global perspective. More than just a conference, YEC is a collaborative space where young people can explore their potential, expand their global perspective, and contribute meaningfully to society and a sustainable future. Grounded in the 165 value system and the framework of "Know Yourself, Build Character, Find Purpose, Lead & Execute, Create Impact," YEC develops human capital that is balanced across three forms of intelligence spiritual, emotional, and intellectual—through a series of integrated experiences including training, discussion forums, study projects, and global exposure.

Since its establishment, YEC has been part of the journey in shaping young individuals who actively grow, dare to take on roles, and demonstrate positive contributions in their country. Now, carrying this spirit forward, YEC is proud to expand its impact to Japan as a continued commitment to nurturing young leaders who are adaptive, integrity driven, and socially conscious ready to become the driving forces for change, not only for themselves but also for their nation and the world.

ALUMNI TESTIMONIALS

Hi, YEC friends! I'm Murtadhaa, an alumni of YEC Batch 1. Do you want to turn your dreams into reality and prove that real change is in our hands, whether big or small? Joining YEC is a wise first step. You'll learn so much, grow your potential from every angle, and show the world that you are present bringing limitless creativity, dedicating yourself to finding solutions, and innovating to make the dreams in your heart come true, while slowly tackling global issues. YEC is more than just a forum; it's a home. It is built with wholehearted effort, born from the heart, shaped in the mind, expressed in words, and proven through action. YEC was created as a key to the world's success: with creativity, innovation, and togetherness, ideas emerge and high quality individuals are born for the good of the nation, grounded in the 165 principle.

YEC opens the door to our hearts, reminding us that humans are always connected to their Rabb. We're destined to bring the whispers in our minds to life for lasting good. From YEC I learned that an event can become a comfortable home. Why? Because our differences become each person's unique mark. Warmth, friendliness, courtesy, love, communication, interaction, these are the things that make us YEC alumni a family. We are one family, the YEC family.

It is an honor and a gift from Allah that I can be part of this family. So... what are you waiting for? In sha Allah, this is your best next step!

ALUMNI TESTIMONIALS

M. Abyzar

Hi everyone! My name is M. Abyzar, and I was a self-funded participant of the first batch of the Youth Empowerment Conference (YEC).

YEC is a platform for young people to develop their potential alongside friends from across Indonesia. We're also trained to build social awareness through global-themed social projects based on the SDGs.

What I love the most is how I didn't just meet friends, I found a family. We shared the same mission: to prepare ourselves as future leaders. I got to meet inspiring mentors, amazing committee members, and friends who are passionate and full of energy. So... are you really going to miss YEC Batch #2? When else can you join an international program, meet incredible people, and be mentored by awesome leaders? Now's your time to grow and shine. Join YEC Batch #2. See you, future leaders!

Hello everyone! My name is Nailah Fairuz Suharjo student of Medicine at Padjajaran University, and I was a fully funded participant of the first Youth Empowerment Conference (YEC) batch one!

YEC was a platform for me to grow, to engage in discussions, to gain lots of new knowledge and insights, to meet important people and of course, to learn while traveling. From this experience, I found new friends and a new family that made me feel completely at home. From the committee, fellow participants, even the coaches, everyone was super fun and supportive.

With SDGs as the main theme of YEC, I realized that many things we used to see as ordinary actually have a big impact on the safety of our world. Not only that, we also learned how to make reports, give presentations, work in teams, and be actively involved in helping to achieve the SDGs. So, what are you waiting for? Want to join an international program, travel abroad, meet new friends, mentors, and important people and all for FREE? Join Youth Empowerment Conference Batch 2 now! You are the next future leader!
